About the workshop

The workplace is becoming more challenging as individuals are expected to perform in ever-changing organisations, more so now than ever following the global pandemic. Internal disagreements can arise in any workplace, and where there is workplace interaction there will inevitably be disputes from time to time. These can lead to conflict which, if unresolved, can be costly to both individuals and the organisation. Managers need to be skilful interveners who can facilitate constructive discussions with those in dispute, and then get the respective parties to identify and work towards reaching mutually agreed solutions that restore long-term respectful professional working relationships. This workshop is designed to lead a better understanding of how to address and resolve issues early before they escalate.

The workshop will focus on how to respond appropriately and to manage disputes in a fair and equitable manner. You will learn how to use alternative dispute resolution techniques such as negotiation and mediation. Scenarios and role play will also play an important part of the week.

Who is the workshop for?

Managers, Directors, and human resources and learning and development professionals who have an interest in how to manage workplace conflict appropriately and who would like to gain a thorough understanding of workplace negotiation and mediation.

How participants will benefit

During the week, you will be able to:

- Explore a model of mediation and enhance your skills as a workplace mediator
- Develop the knowledge and confidence to be able to intervene constructively in disputes so as to reach mutually agreed solutions
- Better understand why and how people react to conflict in the workplace and use this understanding to respond appropriately
- Ensure that a dispute resolution process is integral to the human resources function and to the organisation, and is supported by appropriate policies and procedures
- Play a key role in promoting harmonious working relations for your organisation.

What the workshop will cover
